

Student information sessions

Private student loans – building confidence in repayment

Your graduating students are looking forward to freedom from classes, the thrill of the first ‘real’ job in their career and getting on to the next phase in their life. They also may have anxiety about not getting the ideal job and concern about paying back their private student loans.

You can help ease their private loan repayment concerns through a customized information session you design from a menu of options available through Wells Fargo. Here’s a quick download on the details.

Details on the sessions

Who can attend

Any student who will soon be leaving school or graduating. The information shared will be general in nature and applicable to most private student loan borrowers. The sessions are tailored to any private loan borrower, not just Wells Fargo customers.

What attendees will learn

The basic responsibility of repaying private student loans, how to take advantage of repayment benefits, a student’s rights as a consumer, basic information on budget and credit, how loans are structured, what to do if a student can’t make a payment, and more.

The role of the financial aid office

We ask that you review the training information, select the modules that you deem to be appropriate for your students, and determine how the training will be provided. We’re ready to make the program you design work for your students!

What won’t be included

- Any sales message of a Wells Fargo product or service.
- Any product information or applications.
- Any ambiguity on who our representatives are — we will clearly identify ourselves as Wells Fargo staff.

Interested in learning more or scheduling a session?

Contact your Account Executive to design your counseling session.

Together we’ll go far

